The Building Blocks of Language

The Punctuation Hierarchy

For Writing Compound Sentences:

COORDINATING CONJUNCTIONS

, for
, and
, nor
, but
, or
, yet
, so

For Writing Complex Sentences:

SUBORDINATE CONJUNCTIONS

after	how	that
although	if	though
as	in case (that)	unless
as far as	in order (that)	until
as soon as	in that	when
as if	now that	whenever
as though	once	where
because	provided that	whereas before	rather than	wherever
even if	since	whether
even though	so that	while
except	than	why

For Joining Two Independent Clauses:

CONJUNCTIVE ADVERBS

accordingly	next	nonetheless
additionally	in addition	now
also	in comparison	otherwise
besides	in contrast	rather
certainly	incidentally	similarly consequently	indeed	still
conversely	instead	subsequently
equally	likewise	then
finally	meanwhile	thereafter
furthermore	moreover	therefore hence	namely	Thus
however	nevertheless	undoubtedly

A conjunctive adverb can join two independent (main) clauses.

In this situation, the conjunctive adverb behaves like a coordinating conjunction, connecting two complete ideas. Notice, however, that you need a semicolon, not a comma, to connect the two clauses:

The cat slept in the house; however, the dog slept outside.

A conjunctive adverb will also introduce, interrupt, or conclude a single main clause. In this situation, you will often need commas to separate the conjunctive adverb from the rest of the sentence.

The cat, however, slept in the house.

CLAUSES

INDEPENDENT (MAIN) CLAUSES

Subject + Verb = Complete Thought.

An independent clause is a group of words that contains a subject and verb and expresses a complete thought. An independent clause is a sentence.

Nancy studied in Samuel's Sweet Shop for her grammar quiz.

(Nancy = subject, studied = verb)

DEPENDENT (SUBORDINATE) CLAUSES

Subordinate Conjunction + Subject + Verb = Incomplete Thought

A dependent clause is a group of words that contains a subject and verb but does not express a complete thought. A dependent clause cannot be a sentence. This kind of clause is marked by a dependent or subordinating conjunction, such as although, because, if, that, until, when, etc. (See page 2 for list of subordinating conjunctions.)

When Nancy studied for her grammar quiz in Samuel's Sweet Shop.

(What happened? This is not a complete thought. It is not a sentence.)

When Nancy studied for her grammar quiz in Samuel's Sweet Shop, it was very noisy.

(Adding the independent clause "it was very noisy" completes the thought and creates a complex sentence.)

CONNECTING CLAUSES

You can connect independent clauses together in a variety of ways:

I like this class, and it is very interesting.

COMMA + COORDINATING CONJUNCTIONS (FANBOYS)

I like this class; it is very interesting.

SEMICOLON

I like this class because it is very interesting.

SUBORDINATING CONJUNCTION

I like this class; however, it is too long.

SEMICOLON + CONJUNCTIVE ADVERB

If a subordinate clause comes before the independent clause, it is followed by a comma. It is optional (not necessary) to add a comma if a subordinate clause comes after the independent clause.

It was very noisy when Nancy studied in Samuel's Sweet Shop for her grammar quiz.

PHRASES

A phrase is two or more words that do not contain the subject-verb pair necessary to form a clause. Phrases can be very short or quite long.

Appositive Phrase

---A noun phrase identifying a person, place, or thing named in a sentence.

Appositives often begin with the words a, an, the. They always answer one of these questions: Who is she/he? What is it?

It was Candy, a ranch hand with an old dog.

John Steinbeck, Of Mice and Men

Absolute Phrase

---A phrase describing the rest of the sentence in which it appears.

Headed by a noun, these phrases can add detail and variety to your writing style. Instead of renaming the referent (the first noun) as an appositive does, the absolute phrase introduces a new referent (a “new” noun).

Candy stood silent, his old dog lying close to his side.

John Steinbeck, Of Mice and Men

Participial Phrase

---A verbal ending in --ing or --ed used to describe.

A verbal is a verb that also works like another part of speech. Participles show action, so they act like verbs, but they also describe, so they act like adjectives. Present participles always end in ing; past participles usually end in ed. Unlike --ing main verbs, which cannot be removed from a sentence, participles are removable.

He was clearing his throat loudly. (not removable verb)

Clearing his throat loudly, he stepped out from the shadow. (removable verbal)

Hated by the Federalists and suspected by the Republicans, John Quincy Adams returned to private life.

John F. Kennedy, Profiles in Courage

PHRASES (cont'd)

Prepositional Phrase

---A preposition such as above, about, below, beyond, with, to, etc. begins a prepositional phrase.

They can be removed without destroying the meaning of the sentence. They can also add detail and style to the sentence.

The whole congregation prayed for me alone, in a mighty wail of moans and voices.

Langston Hughes, The Big Sea

Gerund Phrase

---A verbal ending in -ing used to name activities.

A verbal is a verb that also works like another part of speech. Gerunds show action, so they act like verbs, but they also name, so they act like nouns by naming activities.

- Reading is fun.
- We like reading.
- They talked about reading.
- A great leisure activity is reading.
- Their favorite pastime, reading, is enjoyed by many.

Reading a book by the sea is a luxury.

We like reading a book by the sea.

They talked about reading in a classroom setting.

A great leisure activity is reading a book by the sea.

Their favorite pastime, reading a book by the sea, is enjoyed by many.

Infinitive Phrase

---A verbal that always begins with to plus a verb: to sing, to read, to linger, to study, etc.

A verbal is a verb that also works like another part of speech. Infinitives can name something (like a noun does), describe something (like an adjective does), or give a reason for something (like an adverb does).

Noun Infinitive:

To get his feet wet in such a freezing temperature meant trouble and danger.

Jack London, "To Build a Fire"

Adverb Infinitive:

She lingered a moment or two to bathe her own face with the cool water and to smooth her hair.

Gaston Leroux, The Phantom of the Opera

Adjective Infinitive:

It was the time to accomplish his mission or to fail.

Walter Dean Meyers, Legend of Tarik

The Four Types of Sentence Structures in English

Simple: One main (a.k.a. independent) clause.

The pets ate and slept together.

The cat and dog became friends.

The cat and dog became friends, sharing a lifelong love of shady trees together and overturning stereotypes about relationships between the two species.

Compound: Two or more main clause(s) connected by a comma and coordinating conjunction or semicolon.

The cat dreamed of fish, but the dog dreamed of bones.

The cat dreamed of fish; the dog dreamed of bones.

The cat slept in the house; however, the dog slept outside. (“However” is a conjunctive adverb. See accompanying list.)

Complex: One main clause plus one subordinate clause that begins with a subordinating conjunction.

The dog continued to dream until the cat jumped out of the tree.

Since his dream was a pleasant one, the dog decided to ignore the cat’s movement.

Compound-Complex: Two or more main clause(s) plus one or more subordinate clause(s).

Since his dream was a pleasant one, the dog decided to ignore the cat, and it was not long before he was fast asleep again.

The Four Types of Sentence Functions in English

Interrogative (question): What’s for dinner? Why do we always eat pizza?

Declarative (statement): Pizza is a relatively healthy fast food option.

Imperative (command): Order a pizza, please. Hold the anchovies.

Exclamatory (exclamation): They have extra pizza! I love them!

Achieving Sentence Variety in Your Writing

Vary Sentence Length

- short
- medium
- long

Vary Sentence Structure

- simple (one main clause)
- compound (two or more main clauses)
- complex (one main clause and one or more subordinate clauses)
- compound-complex (two or more main clauses and one or more subordinate clauses)

Vary Function

- declarative (statement)
- interrogative (question)
- imperative (command)
- exclamatory (exclamation)

Vary Punctuation

- comma
- semicolon
- colon
- dash(es)

Vary Position of Clauses and Phrases

- periodic (subordinate elements come before the main clause)
- loose (main clause comes before the subordinate elements)

Incorporating Quoted Material

1.) Your introductory phrase, "quotation" (citation).

Use an introductory phrase with a comma to contextualize a quotation:

In this poem it is creation, not a hypothetical creator, that is supremely awesome. Blake's speaker asks, "What immortal hand or eye / Dare frame thy fearful symmetry?" (23-24).

Gatsby is not to be regarded as a personal failure. "Gatsby turned out all right at the end" (176), according to Nick.

Wharton's hero can barely restrain his contempt for his wife at this point in the text. In Ethan's eyes, "[Zeena] was no longer [a] listless creature...but a mysterious alien presence, an evil energy" (94).

2.) Your complete sentence: "quotation" (citation).

Make an assertion of your own and use a colon to introduce the quotation:

Vivian hates the knights for scorning her, and she dreams of achieving glory by destroying Merlin's: "I have made his glory mine" (390).

Fitzgerald gives Nick a muted tribute to the hero: "Gatsby turned out all right at the end" (176).

Cassio represents not only a political but also a personal threat to Iago: "He hath a daily beauty in his life / That makes me ugly . . ." (5.1.19-20).

3.) Your sentence with brief "quotations" mixed in (citation).

Integrate a small amount of quoted material into a sentence of your own:

For Nick, who remarks that Gatsby "turned out all right" (176), the hero deserves respect but no great admiration.

Satan's motion is many things; he "rides" through the air (63), "rattles" (65), and later "wanders and hovers" like a fire (293).

Even according to Cleopatra, Mark Antony's "duty" is to the Roman state.

MLA Format Reminders

All of your typed writing in high school English courses must be in MLA format. Double space your entire essay, but do not hit return to create extra spaces between paragraphs. Use the page below as a model.

In order to create the pagination at the top right corner, follow these steps:

- In Google Docs, go to Insert.
- Select Page Number.
- Choose the image with the numbers on the top right corner.
- In the header, write your last name before the number 1.

Your heading should appear in this order:

- your name
- your teacher's name
- your course
- the date in the format (# Month 2017)

Your original title should express your thesis in a nutshell; it gets centered but not underlined or bolded.

Test of One Man's Faith

In Nathaniel Hawthorne's short story "Young Goodman Brown," the author uses mystery and suspense to hold the attention of the reader. From the beginning to the end of the story, Hawthorne leads the reader into asking the question, "what does all of this witchcraft, mysticism, and the double-sided lifestyles of the characters actually mean?" The reader must not look at

HOW TO FORMAT A WORKS CITED PAGE

The Works Cited page is a list of the sources you cited in your paper. Every parenthetical and in-text citation in your essay should lead the reader here to the full source information in MLA format. There should be no sources on this list that are not cited in your paper. Without a Works Cited page and in-text citation your paper will not be accepted. And you could be accused of plagiarism!

Manage Your School Email Account

Check your school email account regularly so that your teachers can communicate with you. Responding to an email, even if to say “Thanks!,” is common courtesy.

It's easy to set up forwarding so email sent to your Office 365 account automatically goes to another email account, such as your personal Gmail account.

1. Sign in to Office 365 at www.office.com/signin.
2. At the top of the page, choose Settings > Mail.
3. Choose Forwarding. (You can forward email to one other account.)

Digital Portfolios

1. Do not leave documents Untitled.
2. Create a folder for each year of school: 9, 10, 11, 12
3. Use the following naming conventions to submit work digitally:
